

Aesop's Fables

Volume II

Dyslexia-Friendly Special Edition

Dr. Kathryn T. Hegeman

Royal Fireworks Press
Unionville, New York

The Ant and the Dove

One hot day in summer an ant got thirsty. She went to a spring for a drink of water. The ant climbed down a blade of grass to reach the spring. She fell in.

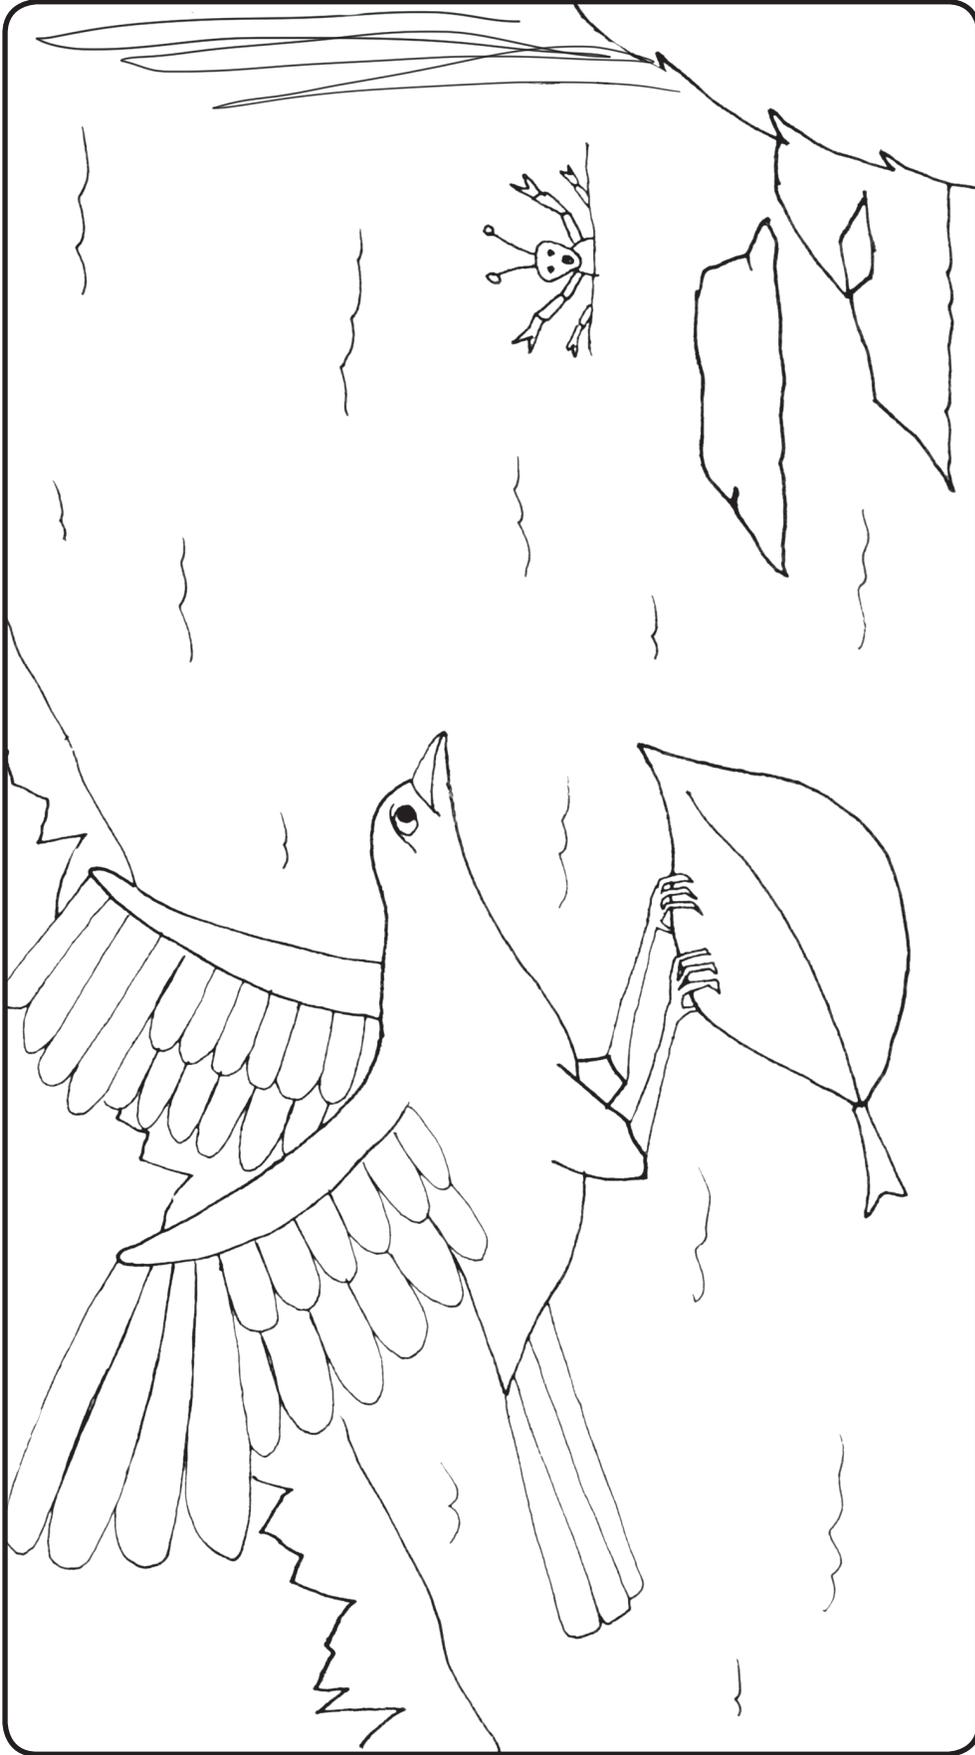

A dove was perched on a nearby tree. She saw that the ant was drowning. She pulled off a leaf and let it drop in the water near the little ant. Quickly the ant climbed on the leaf. Soon she came to the shore.

Just then a hunter came by. He spread his net to snare the dove. The ant guessed his plan. She bit him in the heel. The startled man dropped his net. The dove flew away to safety.

Moral: One good turn deserves another.

Words to know:

blade	spring	deserves
perched	startled	snare
turn	leaf	drowning

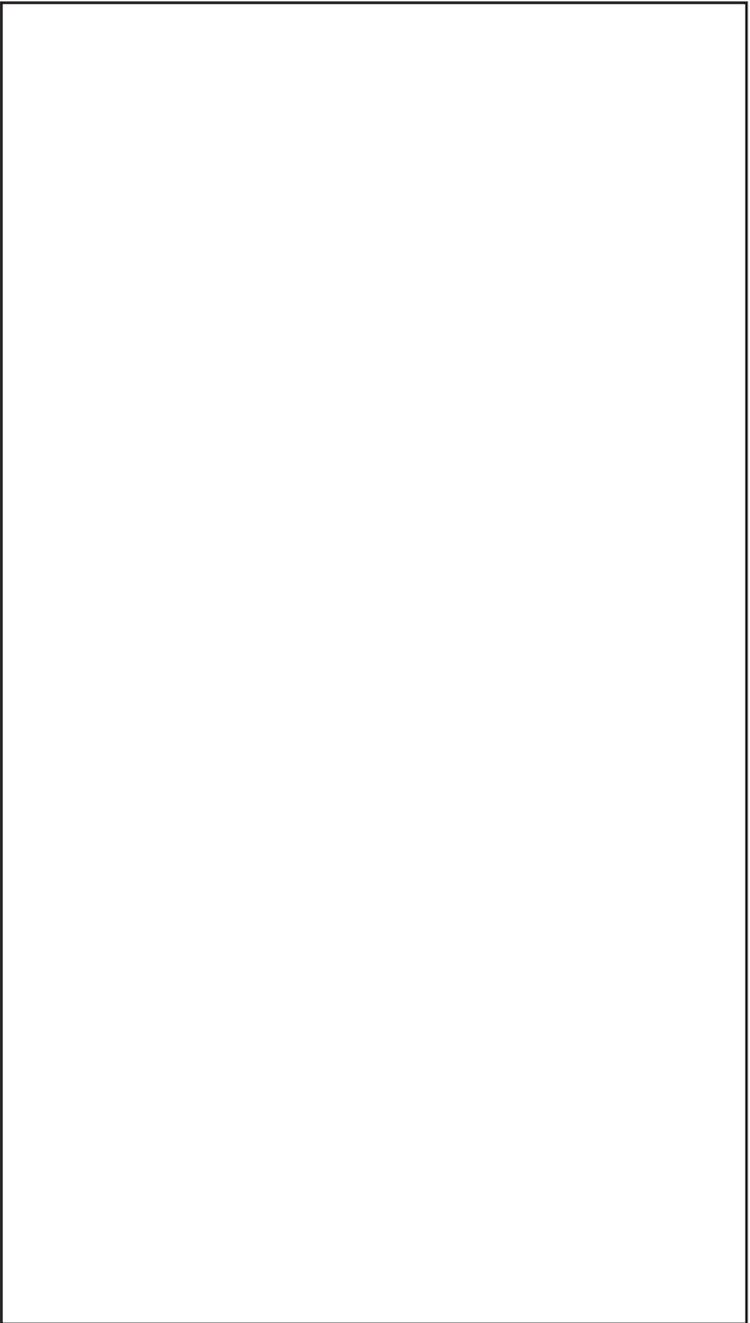

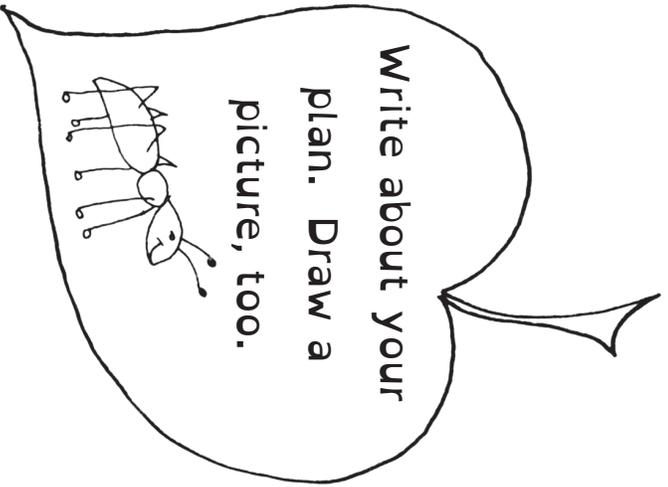

Write a sentence about the picture. Color the picture.

---

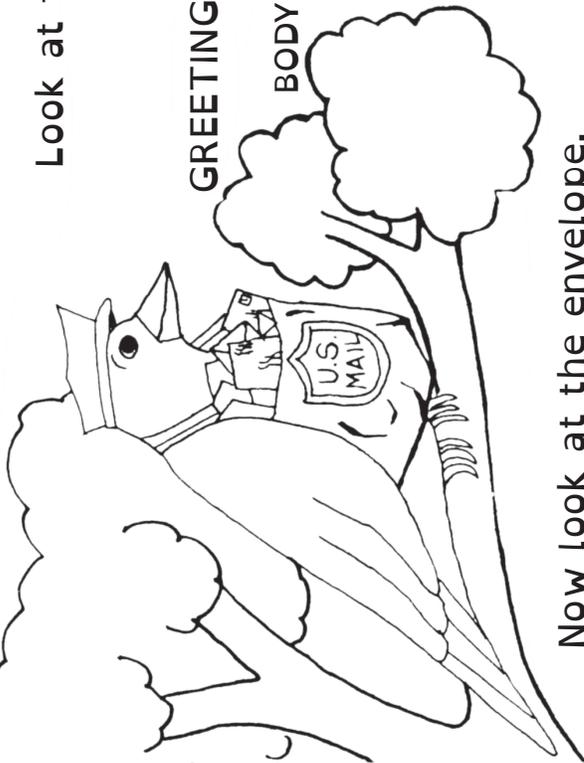

---

Can you think of another way to save the ant?

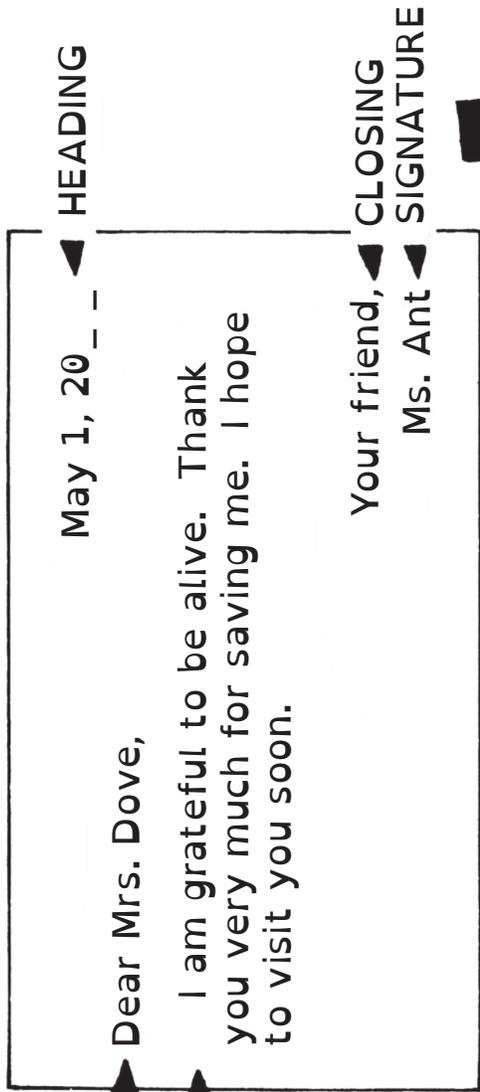

Five horizontal lines for writing a plan.

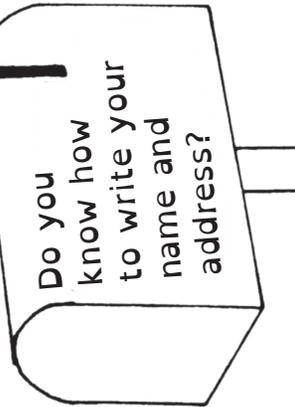

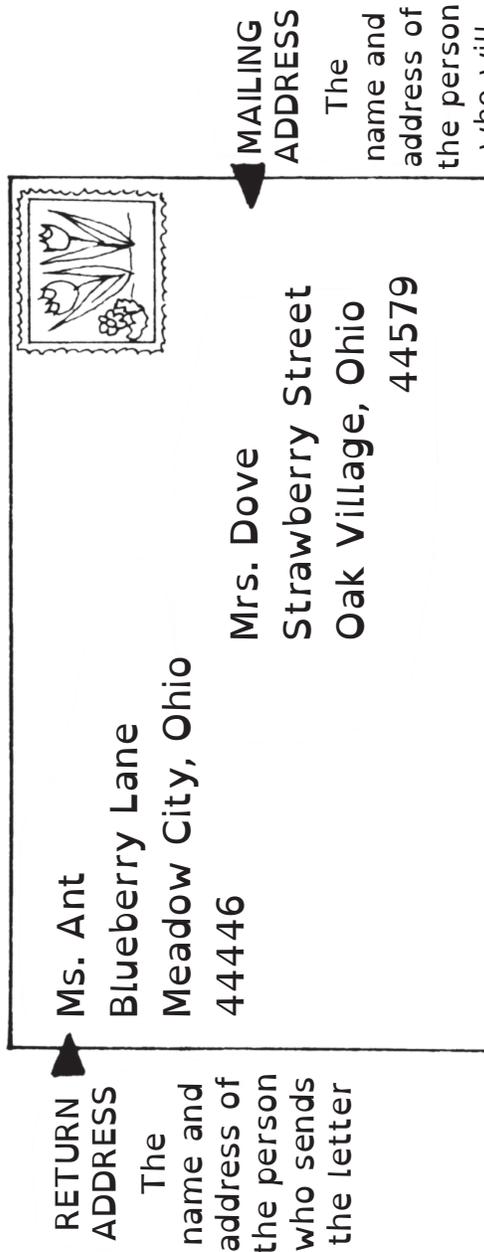

What do you think was the first thing Ms. Ant did when she got home?
 She sat right down and wrote a thank-you note to Mrs. Dove.

Look at the five parts of this letter.

Now look at the envelope.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

How do you think a person who receives a thank-you letter feels?